

London Town

a typeface by Feòrag NicBhrìde

London Town is inspired by the lettering on an 1883 illustrated children's book called London Town. A scanned copy can be found at the United States Library of Congress at http://lcweb2.loc.gov/cgi-bin/ampage?collId=rbc3&fileName=rbc0001_2003juv07202page.db. The style is rather progressive for its time, with no serifs. While the capitals are quite fancy, the lower case could've been designed 50 years later.

This typeface has over 400 glyphs which hopefully includes all of those required to write those European languages which use Latin script. If you do not have the appropriate keyboard driver installed, special characters can be found using the Glyphs/Special Characters menu item in most MacOS X applications. A number of alternative styles can be found in the Private Use Space—these are accessed in the same way.

This archive contains the OTF version of the font, which can be used on Classic MacOS, MacOS X, Linux and Windows. It includes the following files:

- About London Town OTF.pdf - this file.
- LondonTown.otf - the font file In MacOS X, double click on this to see a preview. Click on the “Install Font” button to install. For earlier versions of Mac OS, this file should go in the ‘Fonts’ folder in the System Folder.

A TrueType flavoured OpenType version is also available.

License and Notes

Note that the license includes the provision “Any of these conditions can be waived if you get permission from the copyright holder”. You already have my permission to use this font for commercial purposes, such as in a magazine or advertising, and do not need to ask (though a copy of whatever you used it for would be nice). If you wish to redistribute this font commercially, including on a website with paid advertising, you must still get my permission to do so and “you must make clear to others the license terms of this work”.
